

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Friday, April 14

2000

Contamination control, space environment class April 24-28

A course on the fundamentals of contamination control and space environment will be from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. April 24-28 at Bldg. 4200, room G13/2. To attend, submit Form 59 to Sherry McKellar, CD20. For information, call Ela Washington at 544-1164, or McKellar at 961-0012.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield rep here
9-11 a.m. Fri., Bldg. 4200, room 324A

Stephenson talks of lessons learned from mishaps, noon-2 p.m. Mon., Morris Auditorium

Avionics Department to hold Open House Thursday

Open House for Marshall's Avionics Department will be from noon-4 p.m. on Thursday. The tour begins in the main lobby of Bldg. 4487, and includes Bldgs. 4190 and 4194 (bus only), 4436, 4475, 4476, 4619, 4656 and 4663. Features include new and innovative, as well as historic avionics capabilities, products and facilities. Reserved visitor parking will be provided in the south lot of Bldg. 4487.

Retiree's Association hosts 'fireside chat' April 27

The Marshall Retiree's Association will host the third in a series of talks recalling Huntsville's role in defense and space. "The Lunar Program — 1960-1970" begins at 7 p.m. April 27 in the Student Union Building, at the University of Alabama in Huntsville (UAH). The event is free and open to the public.

Turn in hazardous chemicals 9 a.m.-2 p.m., Tuesday, Bldg. 4705