

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Thursday, Aug. 31

2000

Space Shuttle Atlantis set to launch Sept. 8

The launch of Space Shuttle Atlantis has been set for 7:45 a.m. CDT Sept. 8 from Kennedy Space Center, Fla., on an 11-day mission that will open the doors to the International Space Station's new living quarters. Atlantis is scheduled to land at the Kennedy Space Center at about 3 a.m. CDT Sept. 19.

Marshall welcomes ISO Auditors Judge Lunt, Joe Greico Thursday

40th Anniversary History Chat 11-11:30 a.m., Friday, Heritage Gallery, Bldg. 4203

Safety Bowl continues Sept. 6

Marshall's Safety Bowl Sweet 16 competition continues Sept. 6 with the following matchups:

- 10 a.m. - Space Shuttle Projects Office vs. Engineering Directorate, Team A
- 10:30 a.m. - Systems Management Office vs. Engineering Directorate, Team B
- 2 p.m. - Office of the Chief Financial Officer vs. Transportation Directorate, Team A
- 2:30 p.m. Customer & Employee Relations vs. Transportation Directorate Team B.

In this week's Marshall Star:

- Space Flight Awareness honorees
- Center celebrates 40th anniversary
- NASA awards contracts to study Space Station resupply

Proposal Lessons Learned, 8 a.m.-noon, Sept. 6. Register via AdminSTAR