

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Monday, August 23

1999

National Quality Assurance auditor visits Marshall

Judge Lunt from National Quality Assurance is visiting the Marshall Center to conduct an audit of the Center's ISO 9001 Quality Management System. The audit, which begins Monday and continues through Wednesday, is another in a series of external surveillance audits by Marshall's external registrar to assess the health of the Quality Management System.

Videotape of ISO 9000 follow-on training available. Call 544-8291

Marshall Assoc. lunch Tues., 11:30 a.m., Bldg. 4203 cafeteria. E-mail Mike Smiles

Marshall's Y2K Awareness Day set Wednesday

Marshall will host a Y2K Awareness Day for employees and on-site contractors on Wednesday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. in Bldg. 4200, room G13. Representatives from community banks, the City of Huntsville and Huntsville Utilities will answer questions about Y2K. There will be representatives from organizations at Marshall to explain what has been done to make employees Y2K safe.

Information technology security training set

Mandatory information technology security awareness training will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 9-10 a.m. in Morris Auditorium. For information, call Steve Jones at 544-4373.

Ad forms for 'Marshall Star' on 'Inside Marshall.' Click 'News Sources'