Astronauts Ed Lu, Eric Boe to visit Marshall Thursday

Astronauts Dr. Ed Lu and Lt. Col. Eric Boe will visit the Marshall Center on Thursday. Lu, Expedition Seven flight engineer and science officer aboard the International Space Station, will present mission highlights from 10-11 a.m. in Morris Auditorium. He spent a six-month tour of duty aboard the Station -- logging 184 days in space from April 25-Oct. 27, 2003, and was the first NASA astronaut to launch and return in a Russian Soyuz spacecraft. Boe was selected as a NASA pilot in 2000. He has logged more than 3,000 flight hours in more than 40 different aircraft. Lu and Boe will present Silver Snoopy awards during their visit.
