

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Monday, October 18

1999

5th Gamma Ray Burst Symposium under way

The 5th Gamma Ray Burst Symposium runs Monday-Friday at the Huntsville Hilton. Researchers from a range of astronomical fields will pore over new findings and continue the debate over gamma ray bursts and their strange origins. The Marshall Center, University of Alabama in Huntsville and the Universities Space Research Association, headquartered in Columbia, Md., sponsor the symposium.

Pick up Space Transportation Day tickets from admin officers. Register online by Monday

Marshall Safety Awareness Day kickoff, Wed., 8:30 a.m., Morris Auditorium

Cultural Diversity Leadership Program to be held Nov. 3-4

Cultural diversity leadership training will be held 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Nov. 3-4 at the University of Alabama's Wilson Hall, room 104. This training program teaches the importance of creating and maintaining an environment where everyone has the opportunity, tools and support to work to their full potential while accomplishing the organization's mission. Employees should enroll via AdminSTAR. The cutoff for enrolling is Tuesday.

“OSHA Voluntary Protection Programs are coming”
Are you ready ... are you safe?

Turn in hazardous materials Tues., 9 a.m.-2 p.m., South side Bldg. 4705