

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Friday, September 5

1997

Marshall Holds Training for USMP-4 Mission Next Week

The first of four simulations for the Marshall-managed fourth United States Microgravity Payload (USMP-4) mission will be held here next week. Mission managers, controllers and science teams will participate in the training in preparation the STS-87 mission, targeted for Nov. 19. Science teams represent six universities, the French Space agency and NASA. During the mission, microgravity experiments will be conducted in the fields of materials science, combustion science and fluid physics.

Mir Spacewalk
Coverage to
Start at 7:55 p.m.
CDT Fri. on NASA TV

Friday is Last Day to Order Marshall Picnic T-shirts

The deadline to order Marshall Picnic T-shirts with the event logo on the back is Friday. Sizes small to X-large are $8, XX-large are $9 and XXX-large are $10. Order forms have been distributed around the Center and are available at the NASA Exchange in Bldg. 4752. The picnic will be Oct. 4 at the Marshall Picnic Pavilion.
Contact: Exchange, 4-7564.